XML-short for "extensible markup language"-promises to become the underlying technology for powering intranets and extranets. Evidence is mounting that XML is on a fast track to replace HTML as the standard Internet information delivery language, while enabling lower-cost e-business activities across a broad swath of business types and sizes. We will look at XML technology and it's implications to our industry and show examples of how it's affecting our industry.

The Honolulu Chapter of the Association of Information Technology Professionals (AITP) and the Association for Information and Image Management (AIIM) Aloha Chapter are proud to announce a jointly sponsored presentation featuring Mr. Dennis Daley. Mr. Daley is the Chief Executive Officer of Axean Pacific a Hawaii-based Information Technology Consulting firm. Axean Pacific specializes in distributed computing, infrastructure coordination and web application development. Axean Pacific is currently developing and delivering web applications that are utilizing XML technology.
