President's Message

Lori Morden

2005 has gone by fast. As a recap for the Honolulu Chapter of AITP we had 23 new members join us in 2005 and according to Diana Shelton, our Membership Chair, we are close to 80% renewals. Currently we have 74 Chapter members.

This last year we had some very outstanding luncheon meetings and we are currently preparing for 2006. On January 20th we will be joining with ISSA for our monthly meeting. See the information in the Aloha Gram.

This is my last President's Message, as Susan Shepherd will be the new Honolulu AITP President for 2006. It has been a very good and hectic experience being the President for 2005. I've met some wonderful people and look forwarding to seeing all of them throughout this year and meeting new members.

Thank you for all the support everyone gave me this past year.

This presentation will explain how the use of a networked enabled forensic approach can be used not only as a reactive response tool, but as a proactive tool in the protection of your network. We will discuss how the evolution of computer forensics has lead to its use on corporate networks and why it's the topic of discussion in a lot of executive boardrooms. During the presentation, an actual attack demonstration will be used on a system using the Metasploit framework and how the use of a network enabled forensic approach can catch and preserve the attack.
